

Production Team Leader (Wellington)

- Newly created hands-on leadership role
- Mentor, lead, and manage a team of Production Operators
- Well-loved and growing NZ food manufacturer with positive company culture

The Company

Our client is a well-established and well-loved NZ food manufacturing company based in Wellington. As they are expanding and increasing operating hours, they are currently in need three new Production Team Leaders with food manufacturing and leadership experience.

The Opportunity

You will oversee day-to-day production and be responsible for a team of Production Operators, which involves training and mentoring and hands-on leading on the production line. The company has an exciting future, however they are still in the commissioning stages of their new site, so you will also be tasked with maintenance and troubleshooting and must be resilient to deal with this. The role is rotating shift-based (both night and day), Monday to Friday and your role will also include shift handover and report writing.

Requirements

As a Team Leader you will be someone who works well with others, is comfortable training a team, while also having the ability to work autonomously to oversee day-to-day production. Your role will be a hands-on one, including management of high-speed equipment.

In addition, you are expected to have the following skills and experience,

- 3+ year's production leadership experience in the food manufacturing industry
- Proficiency in operation of high-tech machinery including troubleshooting
- Report writing and organisational skills
- Solid communication and interpersonal skills with all departments and levels (operators through to senior management)
- Positive attitude and ability to motivate staff
- Continuous improvement, planning, and analytical skills
- A relevant formal qualification will be advantageous

Benefits

This is an exciting and rare career opportunity with an innovative and successful NZ food manufacturer with global goals. They have a great company culture and working environment, and a lot to offer as they continue to grow.
